

CORNER IS MISSING

Two Candidates in Norfolk to Succeed Dr. Odendahl.

THE CROWDED VERA CRUZ

How Four Hundred Persons Were Accommodated on Board the Wrecked Barkentine is a Puzzle—Praise for the Rescuers.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NORFOLK, VA., May 15.—The fact that there are two candidates for corner indicates that Dr. E. P. Odendahl, who is absent, will not return. There is no indication that Dr. Odendahl has resigned his place as corner, except that he is not here, and that three candidates are seeking the office that he is not here to fill. There is no indication where he is, but the officials about the city office do not hesitate to say that he must have gone to stay, as he left no notice of his absence. However that may be, there are three candidates for corner, as follows: Dr. T. E. Baird, Dr. E. D. Hunter and Dr. Capshaw. They are confident that Dr. Odendahl is practically, if not formally, vacated, or they would not be candidates for the place. The city is entitled to two corners, and Dr. R. S. Kight is the other incumbent of the office.

How four hundred persons were quartered on the wrecked barkentine Vera Cruz is a puzzle. She is of about 100 tons burden, 100 feet long, and has a depth of hold of 12 feet. In the hold was a small cargo of whale oil and bone. There were no deck accommodations, and the captain and his cabin constituted the superstructure. There were many women and children in the hold, and in event of a contagious sickness, it would have meant extinction. The captain, who was seen the day after she was wrecked, has not been heard from. Whether he will return is not known. The vessel is in charge of the first mate.

Captain Richards, of the Bertha Gray, speaks in the highest terms of Captain Sindall and crew of the steamer Santa Oswald, in effecting the rescue, and also of the kind treatment received while coming to this city on the Santa Oswald. The Bertha Gray was abandoned and is now a floating derelict, being dangerous to navigation, as she is in the course of vessels coast-bound. The brig is thirteen years old, and hailed from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, where she was owned. Captain Richards was married, and considered her for two years, and considered her a good vessel.

The new Court Street Baptist Church of Portsmouth was lighted up last night. The illumination was made by the 232 electric lights, which were turned on at 8 o'clock. The church is a handsome building, and is now a floating derelict, being dangerous to navigation, as she is in the course of vessels coast-bound. The brig is thirteen years old, and hailed from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, where she was owned. Captain Richards was married, and considered her for two years, and considered her a good vessel.

The visit of Assistant Secretary Taylor, of the Treasury Department, Washington, to Portsmouth, to examine the ruins offered for a public building, is expected to result in a choice. The idea is that a site should be secured within the appropriation of $10,000, the amount allowed by Congress for that purpose. It is a foregone conclusion that the government cannot get a site in the business section of the city for the amount appropriated, and the alternatives are to select a site uptown or wait for another Congress and an increased appropriation.

Judge B. D. White, of Princess Anne County Court, has issued an order suspending the collection of all tolls on the county roads. This action is taken because of the report of the road viewers of Princess Anne county, who report all five toll bridges in bad condition—one is impassable.

Preparing for Condemnation of Necessary Land.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
PETERSBURG, VA., May 15.—Under the direction of the City Engineer, measurements are being made to ascertain the exact boundaries of the land necessary for the Appomattox diversion plan. The engineers will have their work done in time to put the information into the hands of the commissioners that will be appointed at the next term of the Chesterfield County Court to condemn the land necessary for this improvement. It is likely that all the land needed will be condemned, even that for which the owners ask a satisfactory price. This will be done through the court. Nothing can be done definitely in the matter till the report of the commissioners is in hand or the price to be paid for the land will figure material in the plans for beginning the work.

Colonel W. D. Chesterman, who has been quite sick, was considerably better last night. He rallied most decidedly, and his recovery and further improvement are considered good.

APPROPRIATIONS THAT WERE MADE

Those of the Legislature Aggregate About $375,000.

The General Assembly, which has just adjourned for the recess and which will be back in November for two or three more months, has, besides the regular appropriations carried in the general appropriation bill, made other expenditures or appropriations already aggregating about $375,000. The total amount appropriated over and above governmental expenditures, up to the passage of the Jamestown bill, aggregated about $115,000. Since then the Jamestown bill added $230,000, and within the past few days $7,000 more was voted for the expenses of the revision committee; $15,000 more for the Farmville Normal; $15,000 additional for the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and $5,000 for the Petersburg Normal. Other small expenditures will in the aggregate make the total nearly $375,000.

Some of the chief items of expenditures for which appropriations have been made are: Jamestown, $200,000; Eastern State Hospital, $20,000; Western State Hospital, $18,500; St. Louis Exposition, $5,000; Moran claim, $10,000; Lee statue, $10,000; Stuart monument, $10,000; State Board of Health, $8,000; crop pest commission, $2,000; Phillips claim, $5,000; William and Mary College, $5,000; pure food law, $2,000; removing Monroe remains, $500, and other small appropriations.

All this will not come out of the revenues of any one year, and, indeed, none of the Jamestown fund will come out of the appropriation for the current year. In nearly every case the appropriations are much smaller than the sums originally asked by the beneficiaries. The Finance Committee of the two houses have scaled all down as much as possible.

CHASED UP FIRE ESCAPE

At Least Cronin Said the Trolley Has a Grudge Against Him.

A night nurse in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, while on her rounds at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, came upon a strange man in the hallway on the third floor. She shrieked, and the man tried to hide, but a surgeon and the night watchman captured him.

"Look out for the fender!" shouted the man, as he tried to jump to one side.

"What's the matter with you?" said the watchman, jerking the fellow to his feet.

"Trolley car chased me in here. There it is again!" shouted the man, and he tried to break away. There was a struggle and he was overpowered.

The police station the man described as Harry J. Cronin, a waiter, residing in Stamford, Conn. He said he had been to San Francisco, Philadelphia and other cities within a day or two, and that he did not know how he happened to be in Long Island City.

He explained to the police that a trolley car chased him up the fire escape back of the hospital, struck him in the stomach, and sent him flying through the window.

Magistrate Smith in the Long Island City Police Court decided that Cronin had better take a few days' rest and send him to the county jail for five days. Cronin refused to walk on streets where there are trolley cars. He said they had a grudge against him.—New York Journal.
